In the second race Don Alonzo, at the false price of 4 to 1, won in a canter. The favorite, Strath-meath, was second, a length before Highland.

The Holly Handleap for two-year-olds was a good contest all the way. Flirtation and Halton alter nated in the lead up to the last few strides, where Plirtation got her head in front. Halton beat Rubioon by two lengths.

In the Scabreeze Stakes for three-year-olds, a selling affair, Chattanooga was the favorite. He got away well and seemed full of running, but Lambley choked him and fought him for six furgs. Then he called on the colt, but Chattanooga had nothing left. Integrity, the outsider of the four starters, was the only one that was permitted to go along unmolested, and he won easily, leading all the way. Herald was second, two lengths

A TRAINER'S NOTES ON THE TURE.

The interest in the great match race between Tammany and Lamplighter increases as the day of the race draws near. In every quarter of the city the race is discussed by all classes who take the slightest interest in racing. Mighly colored lithographs of the horses are posted in stations of the elevated railroads, in hotels, barrious and other public places. The ortist has made the nicture of an exciting race, but leaves the public who look at it to guess on what part of the track the furious drive is The prist has mud- the picts The lithograph shows Tommenv a nesfront of Lamplighter. Years ago, when the biggest part of our business was wholesale, we wanted to make our clothing better; but the average clothier wouldn't pay for firstclass work. He could "do more business with inferior goods at lower prices.'

But we made up our minds to make the best clothing in the world, and began to pay more for cloth, making, and trimming. This virtually threw over the general wholesale trade.

Result: our retail business is big. and growing; because it's good-solid all the way through. Our clothing is better in every way than the wholesaler dates produce. We now sell at wholesale only to a few clothiers in the large cities whose customers appreciate the best things.
